Workshop on Sports-Related Concussions in Youth

“Perspectives of Families, Coaches, and Officials”

JEFF TRIPLETTE

VICE - CHAIR /// NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF SPORTS OFFICIALS

We must change the mindset!

- » Most officials used to play the game they now officiate
 - » “I toughed it out when I got my bell rung – they can too.”
 - » “They keep changing the rules – it’s not tough like it used to be.”
- » Officials have always been taught when a player gets hurt, get help and stand back
 - » “Don’t interfere – let them handle it”
 - » “You’re not a doctor – you don’t know what to do.”

We must educate officials!

- » Officials need training to understand more about concussions
 - » The science – what is angular acceleration
 - » The symptoms
 - » The incidents that can lead to a concussion
 - » Why rules must change to protect our players
- » Officials must adapt to protect the players
 - » Err on the side of safety – call the foul
 - » Communicate to “first responder's” what’s the incident that led to the player being hurt – don’t wait to be asked

Actions we must take!

- » Governing bodies must mandate / track
 - » Concussion training for all coaches and officials before they can supervise athletic activities – Ohio has done this via a new state law effective April 26th
 - » The education of “first responders” to an injury to ask game officials – “Did you see what happened?”
 - » The use of video documentation on whether game officials are aggressively enforcing player safety rules
 - » Discharging game officials who fail to adapt to rule changes regarding player safety
 - » Reporting concussions in ALL sports – help officials adapt

Let's Make Our Sports Safer Together!
