- Case Studies, organized by our 9 ways of working principles
  - Principle 1: Design, manage, and operate civic assets as a portfolio, focused on influencing social outcomes of civic engagement, socioeconomic mixing, environmental sustainability, and value creation:
  - Principle 2: Recognize the intrinsic value of existing buildings, assets, neighborhoods, and people that others disregard:
  - Principle 3: Bring people of all backgrounds back into public life, reconnecting communities to civic assets where trust can be formed:
  - Principle 4: Shift the behavior of citizens from consumers to producers in order to cultivate stewards and champions of the assets:
  - Principle 5: Provide the best quality for all that can compete with alternatives in the private sector
  - Principle 6: Welcome everyone and create opportunities for shared experience among people of all incomes and background
  - Principle 7: Connect people to nature and invite visitorship via walking, biking or transit
  - Principle 8: Provide ecological benefits to the surrounding neighborhood:
  - Principle 9: Attract additional investment in the surrounding neighborhood in a way that sustains public spaces and benefits existing communities

Rodriguez, Lourdes. 2019. Servant Leadership is not an Oxymoron

- “State of Place’s AI-driven built environment database, benchmark, and predictive analytics software helps citymakers use data to make better citymaking decisions and therefore make it easier to communicate the WHY behind those decisions. This saves citymakers time and money, and optimizes outcomes they care about - increasing value, while creating a more just, livable, sustainable built world - for all…”
- “People want more livable cities. We help you use urban amenity data to Plan, Deliver, and Invest in irresistible places people LOVE… making Citymaking easier, more fun, effective, and cost-efficient…”
