

Learning Outcomes

Educating health professionals to address the SDMH: Incorporating mental health into the education of health professionals on the social determinants

Carl Sheperis, Texas A&M University-San Antonio

Workshop Objective:

To understand the mental and physical health impacts of being exposed to the social determinants from Macro and Mezzo levels so the knowledge can be applied in a Micro level

After this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Understand the impact of the social determinants of mental health across the lifespan
2. Understand how mental health can be incorporated into the HPE framework for the social determinants of health
3. Differentiate the impact of the social determinants on physical and mental health at macro, meso, and micro levels
4. Examine opportunities to expand health professional education to incorporate the social determinants of mental health
5. Identify experiential learning opportunities related to the social determinants of mental health for health professional education
6. Design a framework for delivering education on the social determinants of mental health to health professionals-in-training
7. Implement strategies for health profession education that incorporate the social determinants of mental health

After this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Understand the impact of the social determinants of mental health across the lifespan
2. Understand how mental health can be incorporated into the HPE framework for the social determinants of health
3. Differentiate the impact of the social determinants on physical and mental health at macro, meso, and micro levels
4. Examine opportunities to expand health professional education to incorporate the social determinants of mental health
5. Identify experiential learning opportunities related to the social determinants of mental health for health professional education
6. Design a framework for delivering education on the social determinants of mental health to health professionals-in-training
7. Implement strategies for health profession education that incorporate the social determinants of mental health