COVID-19 has fundamentally challenged the delivery of health care services worldwide, forcing difficult choices on health professionals and laying bare many preexisting health, medical, and public health sector frailties. This National Academies workshop series will re-explore previous IOM Crisis Standards of Care recommendations in light of ongoing lessons from the COVID-19 pandemic, with a particular focus on disaster planning, legal and equity considerations, and staffing considerations.

In the third virtual workshop of the series, expert panelists will specifically:

- Describe the roles of key stakeholders in the development/planning, declaration/activation, implementation, and evaluation/monitoring of CSC
- Explore the impact of COVID-19 on (1) healthcare and public health stakeholder and (2) the general public’s attitudes and beliefs on CSC development/planning, declaration/activation, implementation, and evaluation/monitoring
- Understand challenges to and current/potential strategies for developing the data infrastructure, and protocol needed to maintain situational awareness and drive decision-making related to CSC development/planning, declaration/activation, implementation, and evaluation/monitoring
