NATIONAL CANCER POLICY FORUM

- The National Academies created the National Cancer Policy Forum to serve as a trusted venue to examine high-priority policy issues in cancer research and care.
- Forum activities identify opportunities for action to reduce the cancer burden, through basic and translational research, prevention, and by improving the care and outcomes for those diagnosed with cancer.

GOALS OF THE WEBINAR SERIES:

- The National Cancer Policy Forum is hosting this webinar series to discuss the downstream effects of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling, Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, on patients with cancer.
- Webinar speakers, including oncologists and health professional society leaders, will discuss reproductive health care decision making within the context of cancer, with emphasis on patient access to care and how gaps in access can exacerbate health disparities in cancer care.
